ABOUT THE ARTISANS

In 1995 Claytone Ombasyi, a Christian businessman in Nairobi, Kenya, started OTIC, a privately held export and marketing company. Ombasyi, with professional experience in exporting and marketing, wanted to help local artisans connect with export markets. He operates his business with the utmost integrity and expects the same of others, encouraging artisans to consider their products a reflection of themselves and to use the products to share their vision with customers. OTIC provides export, packaging and quality control support for a number of small workshops in and around Nairobi. Depending on their circumstances, these small groups provide a variety of advantages to their artisans. Some offer training in wood carving, while others provide short-term, no interest loans. Ten Thousand Villages has purchased products from OTIC since 2001.

ABOUT YOUR HANDCRAFTED TREASURE

Carved Hippo Eyeglass Holder 4106490

Don't forget your glasses! This whimsical hippo is here to help. Hand-carved hippopotamus holds your specs till you need them next. From Kichaka Poa, Jacaranda wood is a sustainable, fast-growing wood, one of the woods recommended for carvings in Kenya. Kenya is developing a sustainability certification process for jacaranda wood.
