ABOUT THE ARTISANS

Noah's Ark International Exports is a fair trade handicraft marketing organization in Moradabad, India. Noah's Ark provides benefits such as education and medical treatment for artisans and their families. As artisan businesses become more self-sufficient, Noah's Ark takes on new families. Since the company's inception, about 20 artisan workshops have become independent.

Noah's Ark started in 1986, in one room of a family house in Moradabad. Businessman Samuel Masin observed that exporters and middlemen were taking advantage of handicraft artisans. He started Noah's Ark to promote these artisans and their crafts.

ABOUT YOUR HANDCRAFTED TREASURE

Butterfly Candleholder

6832300

Flickering light and fluttering butterflies fill your room with the playful spirit of an Indian summer night. Metal insert with butterfly cut-outs rests in holder made from recycled glass. Handcrafted by brass workers in Moradabad, India. The cost of metals has skyrocketed in recent years, which has had a devastating effect on the local economy and on the lives of individual artisans. Noah's Ark has worked hard to train artisans in using alternative metals and materials.
